In this paper, the basic principles and experimental procedures of capillary isoelectric focusing (CIEF) are introduced, and a microchannel electrophoresis system was designed for CIEF. With a minute sample volume, CIEF was successfully applied in direct DNA analysis without labeling. This method was also used to analyze the DNA laddering in the agarose gel electrophoresis. The separation characteristics of CIEF were studied with regard to chemical composition of the buffer and sample volumes. The feasibility of CIEF in distinguishing high-abundance peptides in a mixture was also demonstrated.

tapeSleeves Week 7 – Tape Sleeves I have been waiting for the day when the tape that I had been using for the past two months would finally rip. It happened. What a pain. I tried everything from better tape to using a different type of tape. I had to pay a very high price for the mistake. This design was supposed to be an early Christmas present for my husband. For that reason, I was not in a hurry to have the finished product.
