This is a useful program designed to help you remove unwanted Internet Explorer toolbar and related add-ons. Download Downloadaddaw There are two things I do when I'm finished for the day – one is pour myself a glass of wine and the other is click the stop button on my video editor. Today I shared a glass of wine because I was so happy with the result of my editing. Check it out and leave me a comment telling me if it looks familiar! I took a few videos of my brunch with my dad on a Sunday in June. Our trip to “The Egg” was beyond perfect. What was your favorite dish from there? Growing up, my dad was not into watching sports. He grew up in Hawaii and was on a baseball team as a kid and could be found outside catching a sunflower field goal or kicking a soccer ball around the yard. He's not into watching a game unless he can be there in person, which explains why he sits out on a couch a few feet away as I game. When we were going out for dinner in Springfield a few months ago, I told my dad I wanted to show him the new restaurant I opened. You've likely seen me share the video I posted to YouTube last year about it, but this video is a video I recorded of the opening day. Enjoy! My dad and I attended Disney's Hollywood Studios a few weeks ago. While we were there, he was mesmerized by the Jedi Training Academy. He can't stop talking about it and has been making me excited for the Star Wars themed event that begins this week. The event features Jedi Training Academy, Jedi challenges, and a special presentation about the Star Wars saga. I'm actually playing a part in the event as one of the hosts. Stay tuned for more details on that. I didn't share this when I shared my new post on Instagram yesterday, but the story is a little different. I'm an ex-jock. I mean, I was a jock. I played football and basketball in high school. It was pretty fun. I had a few friends who weren't interested in playing sports and the rest of us
