A new developmental model of empathy is proposed, namely the Perspective Taking Model of Empathy, which consists of three stages based on the individuals' developmental dynamics. Specifically, in stage 1, a person's typical perspective is to belong to the self. In stage 2, the individual's perspective-taking increases to that of another self; and in stage 3, the individual's perspective-taking is wider to that of the group. In this model, the role of intention is fundamental. Specifically, the individual in stage 1 1cb139a0ed
