What's New in the?

Beautiful photos should be available at your fingertips all the time and the most accessible location should be on the New Tab Page. We think that we can all agree that we know a beautiful photo when we see it. Skipping all the relativity-related and proper scientific explanations, it's just the way we're wired. Since photos are such a big part of our culture and beautiful photos are have such a powerful effect on our mood and brain, why not replace the boring New Tab screens from our browsers with something more "artsy?" Get a new stunning photo each time you open a new tab in Chrome This is exactly what this Chrome extension dubbed Exposure New Tab does - it provides you with an eye-pleasing photo alongside with other adjacent details (photo name and author) every time you open a new tab. It does not require any type of pre-configuration or login procedure and deploying on your computer's Chrome browser should not take anything more than a couple of seconds, since you only have to click the "ADD TO CHROME" button from its official Web Chrome Store listing. Mood-enhancing photos and the possibility to shuffle them The extension itself is primarily aimed at capturing the attention of users who are actively into photography since it works towards increasing the popularity of Exposure, a website for telling visual stories. Besides the photo itself and various details, the extension also provides you with the possibility to shuffle for more photos, as well as mark your favorite ones as "enjoyed." There are a couple more options: in the upper part of the Chrome's window, a quick link towards exploring more photo stories and sharing your story if you do so choose to, on the aforementioned website, of course. By clicking the picture, you can check-out the artist's page and subscribe to his or her stories. Brings Exposure-powered photography on your Chrome new tab screen To conclude, if you don't require a more "functional" new tab screen on your Chrome browser and you like the idea of being provided with a new attractive photo each time you open a new tab then, by all means, give Exposure New Tab a try-out.
